

Suggested from Andy Warrener Outdoor/Historical Resource Program & Parks Fort King National Historic Landmark:
Coordinator Recreation

Unfortunately, we are bereft of written accounts, be as Muskogee is not a written language. You simply will not find a non-fiction account of the war from a Seminole perspective.

Some suggested reading however:

‘Amidst a Storm of Bullets’ – Lt. Harry Prince

- This is a first-hand account, a diary kept by Prince

‘This Miserable Pride of a Soldier’ – Colonel William S. Foster

- Another first hand account of the war

‘Florida’s Seminole Wars 1817-1858’ by Joe Knetsch

- Knetsch is a great resource and this book covers all 3 wars

‘Hollow Victory’ – by John and Mary Lou Missall

- This is historical fiction but probably the closest you’ll come to a Seminole perspective

These can all be obtained from the Seminole Wars Foundation: <https://seminolewars.org/index.php/shop/>

I hope to have these titles available in our gift shop in the future.

Tom Coleman Board of Directors

I found a podcast called, Anthology of Heroes Podcast on YouTube. If you search Part 1, Unconquered Seminoles, you will begin the 3 part series with Part 2 being relevant to Fort king and Osceola. It’s an excellent series which covers the Seminole Wars. Would be great indoctrination for new board members.

Massacre by Frank Laumer is about the Dade Masacre